SCULPTURES

A form of art in which hard or plastic materials are worked into three-dimensional forms. Design can take the form of freestanding objects, reliefs on surfaces, or environments ranging from tableaux to environments that encompass the spectator. Various media may be used, such as clay, wax, stone, metal, fabric, glass, wood, plaster, rubber, and random "found" objects. The materials may be carved, modeled, molded, cast, wrought, welded, sewn, assembled, or otherwise shaped.
